INTRODUCTION

- Successful value creation needs successful value delivery.
- Instead of limiting their focus to their immediate suppliers, distributors, and customers, holistic marketers are examining the whole supply chain as a value network, including their suppliers' suppliers upstream and their distributors' customers downstream.
- This module and the upcoming module focuses on managing marketing channels of distribution and supply chains. Each is an important element in the marketing mix.

IIT ROORKEE NIPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 5

To start this successful value creation needs successful value delivery. So, creation and delivery they go hand in hand. Instead of limiting their focus to their immediate suppliers, distributors and customers' holistic marketers are examining the whole supply chain as a value network. So, this supply chain is being treated as a value network and this value network is used for value creation and value delivery.

So, this value network includes their suppliers' suppliers upstream and distributors' customers downstream. So, on the left hand side it includes everyone suppliers, manufacturers, suppliers and suppliers' suppliers and on the right hand side it has the distributors and the retailers and the customers etcetera.

In this module and the upcoming module, we will focus on managing marketing channels or distribution and supply chains. Each is an important element in the marketing mix.

NATURE AND IMPORTANCE OF MARKETING CHANNELS
WHAT IS A MARKETING CHANNEL OF DISTRIBUTION?

- You see the results of distribution every day.
- You may have purchased Lay's Potato Chips at a Easyday convenience store, a book online through Amazon.in, and Levi's jeans at a Kohl's department store.
- Each of these items was brought to you by a marketing channel of distribution, or simply a marketing channel.

IT ROORKEE | NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 6

Now, let us look at the nature and importance of marketing channels. So, what is marketing channel of distribution? You see the results of distribution every day, everywhere. You may have purchased Lay's potato chips at an Easy day convenience store, a book online through Amazon dot in and Levi's jeans at a Kohl's department store. Each of these items was bought by you by a marketing channel of distribution or simply a marketing channel.

WHAT IS A MARKETING CHANNEL OF DISTRIBUTION?

Marketing Channel

- It consists of individuals and firms involved in the process of making a product or service available for use or consumption by consumers or industrial users.
- Marketing channels can be compared with a pipeline through which water flows from a source to a terminus.
- Marketing channels make possible the flow of products and services from a producer, through intermediaries, to a buyer.
- Intermediaries go by various names (see Figure 27.1) and perform various functions.

IT ROORKEE | NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 7

So, now what is the marketing channel of distribution? It consists of individuals and firms involved in the process of making a product or service available for use or consumption by consumers or industrial users. So, this marketing channel include both for the consumers and as well as for the industrial users.

Marketing channels can be compared with a pipeline through which water flows from a source to a terminus. So, that is a seamless integrated network a pipeline, so that this water flows easily through this channel through the channel and similar situation with a marketing channel so, that the products and services can easily flow through these channels to the customers.

So, marketing channels make possible the flow of products and services from a producer through the intermediary to a buyer or the consumer. Intermediaries go by various names so, we will see figure 27.1 and perform various functions.

Now, the problem is that from the supplier from the manufacturer to the customer there are several entities that come in between which are called as intermediaries, but they come by in various names and they perform various functions along this channel.

(Refer Slide Time: 04:16)

NATURE AND IMPORTANCE OF MARKETING CHANNELS
WHAT IS A MARKETING CHANNEL OF DISTRIBUTION?
Term	Description
Middleman	Any intermediary between the manufacturer and end-user markets
Agent or broker	Any intermediary with legal authority to act on behalf of the manufacturer
Wholesaler	An intermediary who sells to other intermediaries, usually to retailers; term usually applies to consumer markets
Retailer	An intermediary who sells to consumers
Distributor	An imprecise term, usually used to describe intermediaries who perform a variety of distribution functions, including selling, maintaining inventories, extending credit, and so on; a more common term in business markets but may also be used to refer to wholesalers
Dealer	A more imprecise term than distributor that can mean the same as distributor, retailer, wholesaler, and so forth

Figure 27.1: Terms used for marketing intermediaries vary in specificity and use in consumer and business markets.

Now, this is what the various names that these intermediaries carry. So, they can be middlemen they are agents or brokers, wholesalers, retailers, distributors and dealers and here we have the description of what they are doing in this channel.

So, the middlemen are any intermediary between the manufacturer and the end user markets, agents and brokers are intermediaries with legal authority to act on behalf of a manufacturer, a wholesaler is an intermediary who supplies to other intermediaries usually to retailers' terms usually applies to consumer markets.

The retailers any intermediary who sells to the consumer, distributor is an imprecise term, usually used to describe intermediaries who perform a variety of distribution functions, including selling, maintaining inventories, extending credit and so on. A more common term in business markets, but may also be used to refer to wholesalers. So, several times this wholesalers and distributors they may be the same. The dealer is a more imprecise term than distributor that can mean the same as distributor retailer wholesaler and so forth.

WHAT IS A MARKETING CHANNEL OF DISTRIBUTION?

- Some intermediaries purchase items from the seller, store them, and resell them to buyers.
- For example, Tetley produces specialty teas and sells them to food wholesalers.
- The wholesalers then sell these teas to supermarkets and grocery stores, which, in turn, sell them to consumers.
- Other intermediaries such as brokers and agents represent sellers but do not actually take title to products—their role is to bring a seller and buyer together.

IT ROORKEE | NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 9

Some intermediaries they purchase items from the sellers, you store them and resell to the buyers. So, now, you see that first intermediaries they are purchasing the items themselves keep them in their stores and then they resell them to the buyers. For example, Tetley produces specialty teas and sells them to food wholesalers. The wholesalers then sell these teas to supermarkets and grocery stores which in turn sell them through to consumers.

Other intermediaries such as brokers and agents they represent sellers, but do not actually take title of the product. So, these brokers and agents they are not the wholesalers they do not buy anything they are just representative of the seller. So, these brokers are agents they represent sellers, but do not actually take title of the product their role is to bring a seller and a buyer together. So, only thing that they do is to bring seller and buyer together.

(Refer Slide Time: 06:45)

IMPORTANT FUNCTIONS PERFORMED BY INTERMEDIARIES

- The importance of intermediaries is made even clearer when we consider the functions they perform and the value they create for buyers.
- Intermediaries make possible the flow of products from producers to ultimate consumers by performing three basic functions (see Figure 27.2).

IIT ROORKEE NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 10

Now, let us look at the important functions that are performed by intermediaries the importance of intermediaries is made even clearer when we consider the functions they perform and the value they create for the buyers. Intermediaries make possible the flow of products from producers to ultimate consumers by performing three basic functions. So, this these are some three basic functions that these intermediaries in whatever form they come they may be agents or brokers etcetera. So, what are these three basic functions?

(Refer Slide Time: 07:21)

Type of Function	Activities Related to Function
1 Transactional function	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Buying: purchasing products for resale or as an agent for supply of a product.• Selling: contacting potential customers, promoting products, and seeking orders.• Risk taking: assuming business risks in the ownership of inventory that can become obsolete or deteriorate.
2 Logistical function	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Assorting: creating product assortments from several sources to serve customers.• Storing: assembling and protecting products at a convenient location to offer better customer service. Sorting: purchasing in large quantities and breaking into smaller amounts desired by customers.• Transporting: physically moving a product to customers.
Facilitating function	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Financing: extending credit to customers.• Grading: inspecting, testing, or judging products and assigning them quality grades.• Marketing information and research: providing information to customers and suppliers, including competitive conditions and trends.

Source: Roger, K., Steven, H. & William, R. (2013). Marketing: The Core. McGraw-Hill Irwin, Fifth Edition.

IT Roorkee | NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE | 11

So, these are the three basic type of functions listed on the left hand side, one is the transactional function, another is the logistical function and the third is the facilitating function. Now what let us see what are the activities that is related to each of the function.

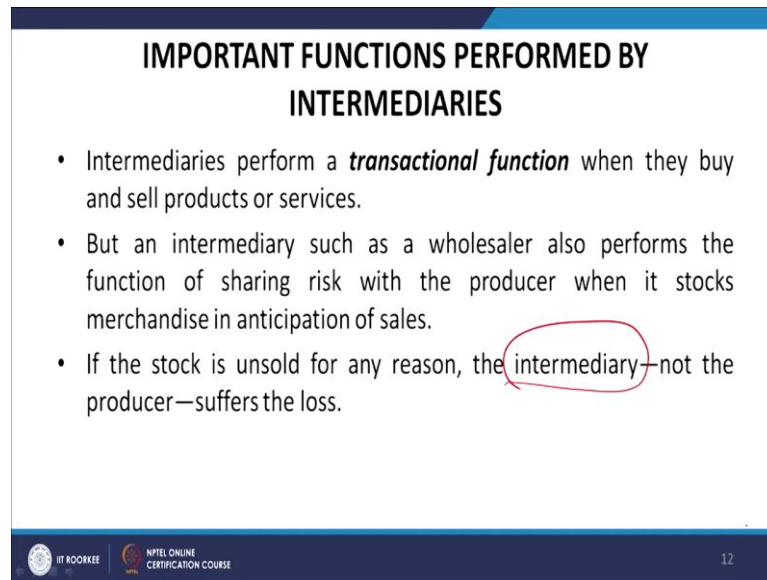

So, activities related to the transactional functions are buying, that is purchasing products for resale or as an agent for supply of a product. Then it is selling, that is contacting potential customers, promoting products and seeking orders. The third is risk – taking, assuming business risk in the ownership of inventory that can become obsolete or deteriorate. So, this is the first function and this is 1 a, 1 b and 1 c.

When they when we are talking of logistic functions so, there are three types of activities related to that the first is assorting, that is creating product assortments from several sources to serve customers. The second is a storing, assembling and protecting products at a convenient location to offer better customer service. Sorting is purchasing in large quantities and breaking into smaller amounts that is desired by the customers. The third activity is transporting, that is physical moving physically moving a product to customers.

Now the third type of function are the facilitating functions. So, the first activity under this function is financing, that that is extending credit to customers. The second activity related to facilitating function is grading that that is inspecting testing or judging products and assigning them quality grades. The third activity is marketing information and research that is providing information to customers and suppliers including competitive conditions and trends.

(Refer Slide Time: 09:25)

IMPORTANT FUNCTIONS PERFORMED BY INTERMEDIARIES

- Intermediaries perform a transactional function when they buy and sell products or services.
- But an intermediary such as a wholesaler also performs the function of sharing risk with the producer when it stocks merchandise in anticipation of sales.
- If the stock is unsold for any reason, the intermediary—not the producer—suffers the loss.

IT ROOKEE NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 12

So, intermediaries they perform a transactional function when they buy and sell products or services, but an intermediary such as a wholesaler also performs the function of sharing risk with the producer when it stocks merchandise in anticipation of sales. If the stock is unsold for any reason the intermediary not the producer suffers the loss, because now the intermediary has bought this product. So, the profit and the loss whatever be the situation will be of the intermediary and not of the company or the producer.

The logistics of a transaction involves the details of preparing and getting a product to buyers.

(Refer Slide Time: 10:13)

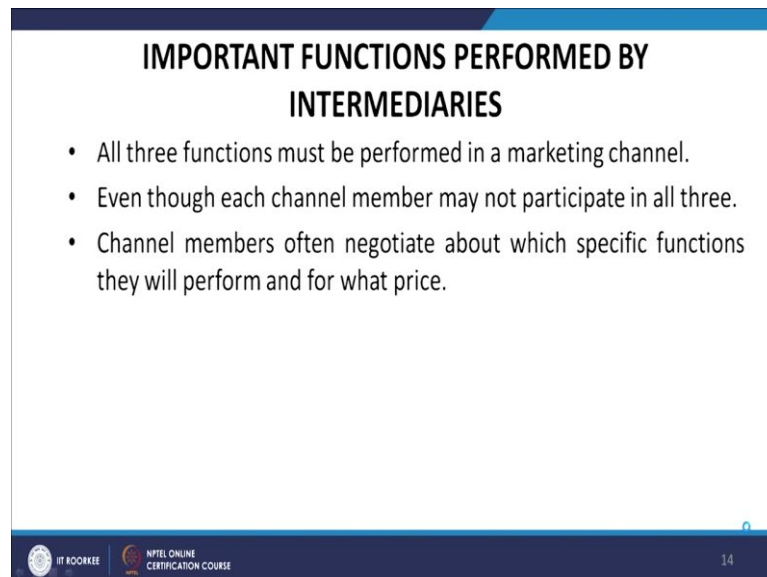

IMPORTANT FUNCTIONS PERFORMED BY INTERMEDIARIES

- The logistics of a transaction involve the details of preparing and getting a product to buyers.
- Gathering, sorting, and dispersing products are some of the logistical functions of the intermediary.
 - Imagine the several books required for a literature course sitting together on one shelf at your college bookstore.
- Finally, intermediaries perform facilitating functions that make a transaction easier for buyers.

IT ROORKEE NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 13

Gathering, sorting and dispersing products are some of the logistic functions of the intermediary, imagine the several books required for a literature course sitting together on one shelf at your college bookstores. Finally, intermediaries perform facilitating functions that make a transaction easier for the buyers.

(Refer Slide Time: 10:34)

IMPORTANT FUNCTIONS PERFORMED BY INTERMEDIARIES

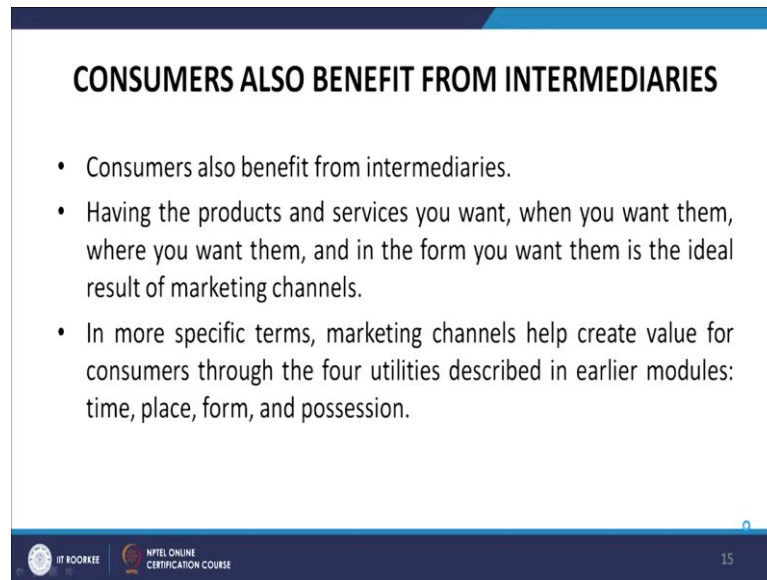

- All three functions must be performed in a marketing channel.
- Even though each channel member may not participate in all three.
- Channel members often negotiate about which specific functions they will perform and for what price.

IT ROORKEE NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 14

Now, all these three functions must be performed in a marketing channel. Even though each channel member may not participate in all the three functions, but all the three functions have to be performed. So, one intermediary may be performing all these three things or there may be several intermediaries performing these three basic functions. Channel members often negotiate about which specific functions they will perform and for what price, what price they will charge for that function.

(Refer Slide Time: 11:07)

CONSUMERS ALSO BENEFIT FROM INTERMEDIARIES

- Consumers also benefit from intermediaries.
- Having the products and services you want, when you want them, where you want them, and in the form you want them is the ideal result of marketing channels.
- In more specific terms, marketing channels help create value for consumers through the four utilities described in earlier modules: time, place, form, and possession.

IT ROORKEE NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 15

Now, let us look at how consumers benefit from intermediaries. So, consumers they also benefit from intermediaries, having the products and services you want, when you want them, where you want them and in the form you want them is the ideal result of marketing channels. In more specific terms marketing channels help create value for consumers through the four utilities described in the earlier module that is the time utility, the place utility, form utility and possession utility.

(Refer Slide Time: 11:51)

CONSUMERS ALSO BENEFIT FROM INTERMEDIARIES

- Time utility refers to having a product or service when you want it. For example, Blue Dart Express provides early delivery.
- Place utility means having a product or service available where consumers want it.
- Form utility involves enhancing a product or service to make it more appealing to buyers.

IIT ROORKEE NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 16

This time utility refers to having a product or service when you wanted. For example, Blue Dart express provides early delivery. Place utility means having a product or service available where consumers want it. Form utility involves enhancing a product or service to make it more appealing to the buyers.

(Refer Slide Time: 12:14)

CONSUMERS ALSO BENEFIT FROM INTERMEDIARIES

- Consider the importance of bottlers in the soft-drink industry.
- Coca-Cola and Pepsi-Cola manufacture the flavor concentrate (cola, lemon-lime) and sell it to bottlers—intermediaries—which then add sweetener and the concentrate to carbonated water and package the beverage in bottles and cans, which are then sold to retailers.
- Possession utility entails efforts by intermediaries to help buyers take possession of a product or service, such as having airline tickets delivered by a travel agency.

IIT ROORKEE NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE 17

CHANNEL STRUCTURE AND ORGANIZATION

- A product can take many routes on its journey from a producer to buyers.
- Marketers continually search for the most efficient route from the many alternatives available.
- As you'll see, there are some important differences between the marketing channels used for consumer products and business products.

IT ROORKEE | NPTEL ONLINE CERTIFICATION COURSE | 18

Another thing that we will talk about in this module is the channel structure and organization. A product can take many routes from its journey from a producer to the buyer. Marketers continually search for the most efficient route from the or many alternative available.

So, there are several routes from which the products can move from the producer to the buyer and now it is the role of the marketer to look for the most efficient route. As you will see there are some important differences between the marketing channels used for consumer products and business products.

MARKETING CHANNELS FOR CONSUMER PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

- Figure 27.3 shows the four most common marketing channels for consumer products and services.
- It also shows the number of levels in each marketing channel, as evidenced by the number of intermediaries between a producer and ultimate buyers.
- As the number of intermediaries between a producer and buyer increases, the channel is viewed as increasing in length.

Now, let us look at the marketing channel for consumer products and services. So, this figure on the right hand side it shows the marketing channel for consumer products. So, there are, direct channels that is directly from the producers to the consumer the retail channel.

So, the product moves from the producer to the retailer and then to the consumer. Then there are wholesalers channel in between the retailers and producers come the wholesaler and then there is an agent channel. So, there is a producer he hires an agent who then negotiates with wholesaler or distributors, wholesalers and distributors take on the title of the product and then they sell it to the retailers, then the retailers sell it to the consumer.

So, this figure 27.3 shows the four most common marketing channels for consumer products and services. It also shows the number of levels in each marketing channel. So, these the number of people getting involved they are the number of channels as evidenced by the number of intermediaries between the producer and the ultimate buyer. As the number of intermediaries between a producer and buyer increases, the channel is viewed as increasing in length.

So, in this direct channel that is channel A. So, we are talking about this channel.

(Refer Slide Time: 14:40)

Direct Channel

- Channel A represents a direct channel because the producer and the ultimate consumers deal directly with each other. Many products and services are distributed this way.
- Many insurance companies sell their services using a direct channel and branch sales offices.

- Why is there no wholesaler? So many variations exist in the product that it would be impossible for a wholesaler to stock all the models required to satisfy buyers; in addition, the cost of maintaining an inventory would be too high.

- Adding a wholesaler in Channel C is most common for low-cost, low-unit value items that are frequently purchased by consumers, such as candy, confectionary items, and magazines.
 - For example, Mars (a US confectioner) sells case quantities of its line of candies to wholesalers, who then break down (sort) the cases so that individual retailers can order in boxes or much smaller quantities.
