ANSWER THE FOLLOWING

I. Identify the Social Functions of the underlined conversation. (10X1=10).

Tourist: Good morning! I'm excited to visit the historical fort today.

Guide: Good morning! Welcome to our heritage site. May I know if you have visited here before? (1)

Tourist: No, this is my first time. Could you please tell me about the main attractions here? (2)

Guide: Of course! The fort was built in the 17th century. You should definitely see the ancient watchtower and the royal palace. (3)

Tourist: That sounds interesting. Is photography allowed inside the fort? (4)

Guide: Yes, but please avoid using flash in the palace area to protect the artifacts. (5)

Tourist: Thank you for the information. Also, can I get some refreshments nearby after the tour? (6)

Guide: Yes, there is a small cafe near the exit where you can get tea and snacks. Feel free to ask me if you need any help during the visit. (7)

Tourist: That's very kind of you. I'm looking forward to exploring the fort. I must say, this place is really well maintained. Thank you for preserving such an important part of history. (8)

Tourist: Could you also guide me on how to get to the watchtower from here? (9)

Tourist: It might be helpful to have a small brochure or map for first-time visitors. Maybe that's something to consider? (10)

V Read the following passage and answer the questions below (1x10=10)

In recent decades, technology has transformed the way people communicate, work, and learn. The rise of the internet and smartphones has made information accessible within seconds, connecting individuals across the globe. Online education, in particular, has gained immense popularity, offering flexibility to students who cannot attend traditional classrooms. Many universities now provide full degree programs online, allowing learners to study at their own pace.

However, this shift also raises concerns. Some critics argue that online learning reduces face-to-face interaction and limits opportunities for teamwork and social skills. Technical issues, such as poor internet connectivity, can further hinder the learning experience, especially in developing countries. On the other hand, supporters believe that online platforms encourage independent learning and provide equal opportunities for people of different backgrounds.

Ultimately, the effectiveness of online education depends on how it is designed and used. Blended learning, which combines online resources with classroom teaching, is seen as a promising solution that balances flexibility with human interaction.

VI Make notes for the given paragraph (1x5=5)

In recent years, climate change has become one of the most pressing global challenges. Rising temperatures, melting glaciers, and unpredictable weather patterns have affected millions of lives across continents. Scientists warn that if greenhouse gas emissions continue at the current rate, the planet may face severe consequences, including rising sea levels, food shortages, and loss of biodiversity.

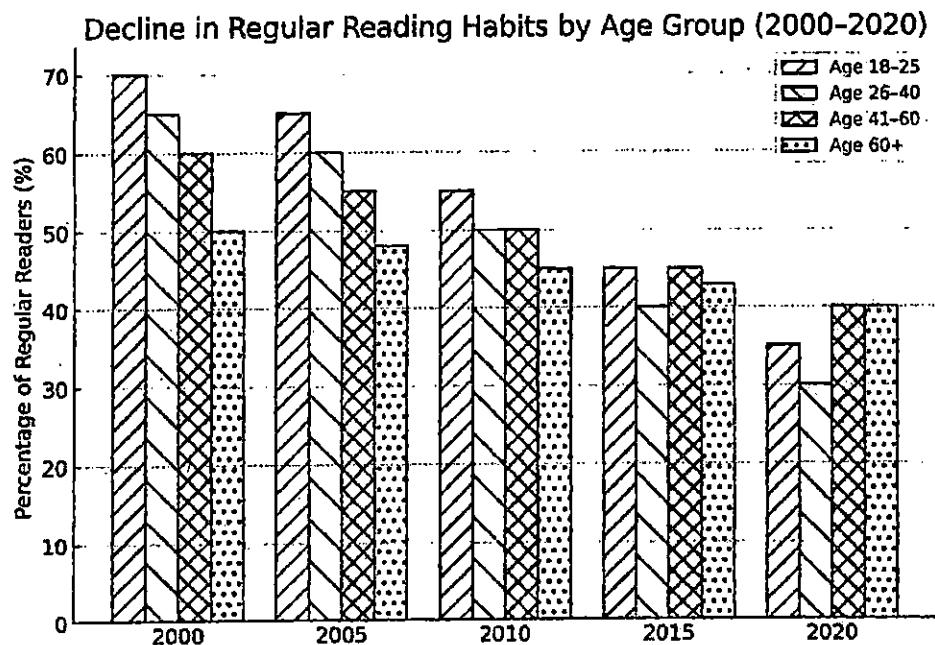

Governments worldwide are taking action by signing agreements such as the Paris Accord, which sets targets for reducing emissions. Many countries are investing in renewable energy sources like solar and wind power to replace fossil fuels. In addition, there is growing emphasis on sustainable farming practices, waste reduction, and the use of electric vehicles.

However, climate change is not only an environmental issue but also a social and economic one. Poorer nations are often the most vulnerable, as they lack the resources to adapt to extreme weather events. International cooperation, public awareness, and individual lifestyle changes are therefore essential to address this crisis. The fight against climate change requires joint efforts from governments, businesses, and ordinary citizens.

Technological innovation is also playing a vital role in tackling climate change. From carbon-capture systems to smart grids and energy-efficient buildings, modern solutions are helping reduce environmental damage. Research into plant-based diets, biodegradable materials, and low-carbon transport offers further hope for a sustainable future.

At the same time, education remains key in shaping attitudes and behaviors. Schools, universities, and media campaigns are raising awareness among young people, empowering them to take action. By teaching the importance of conservation and responsible consumption, future generations may develop habits that protect the planet more effectively than before.
